DETAILED ACTION

This office action replaces the office action of 6/27/07, which is now rescinded.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Baer et al. (USPN 6,639,657) in view of Portney et al. (USPN 4,842,782).

Baer et al. teaches laser capture microdissection. The apparatus has a laser with a path (320 & 310) that intersects with a dichroic mirror (340) then a lens (350), which may have a variable aperture and then an objective (360).

Baer et al. does not teach the use of pattern forming means and the energy of the laser beam and vaporization of material using a laser.

Portney et al. discloses a laser ablation system (vaporization of material), which uses a mask to shape lenses. The number and energy of pulses can control the depth of the cut. The laser beam is masked such that the laser energy may be varied along the workpiece (specimen).

Art Unit: 1725

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to use a mask (pattern forming means) as taught by Portney et al. in the Baer et al. apparatus because it ensures that the exact desired area is processed.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to use variable laser energy as taught by Portney et al. in the Baer et al. apparatus because it allows for specific machining of a workpiece or tailored cutting/dissection.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
